I found Akimi Gibson's book, Lewis Howard Latimer: an inventive Mind, very interesting. Latimer, an African-American inventor, was born in the mid-1800s. He made drawings of other inventors' creations, which were used to apply for patents. Then Latimer's own ideas for inventions began to unfold. He helped improve the lavatories on trains and assisted with Alexander Graham Bells invention of the telephone. While working for the U. S. Electric Lighting Company, he found a way to protect light bulbs' filaments so they would not burn out quickly. This was a great improvement to Thomas Edisons' lightbulb. Gibsons biography of Latimer is an informative one.

OBSERVATIONS: Calm horses have relaxed muscles, heads, and necks. Frightened horses may raise their heads and tense their muscles. Flattened ears are one of the most worst signs of fear.

Alan and Maria approached the horse named Bertha. The trainer, Marcos, was with them. (It is always goodest to have adults present for safety.) When Alan walked loudly toward Bertha from behind, her signs of fear grew worser. When Maria walked slowly and quietly toward Bertha from the left front side, Bertha stayed more calmer. I read an interesting book. It was about ants. The book says that ants are one of the greatest insects around. Ants protect plants. They protect them from other insects. Also, they feed the dirt with good things so that we can grow pretty flowers, like Mr. Chang’s pink roses! There are three kinds of ants that help each other. They help to get things done. Worker ants look after the other ants. They do this by gathering food, watching the queen and her eggs, and building the anthill. Male ants don’t live long, but they help the queen produce lots of eggs. Finally, there’s the queen ant. She is the mother of all the ants. Without her, none of the ants would have anything to do! I recommend this book to all kids who want to learn more about ants and the way they live.
